Hi Viv,

I just need to check everyone has all the details they need to potentially coordinate a Skywhale appearance on October 30 at Parliament House.

I have given Viv your details for the organiser, but Viv, can you reply all and perhaps give that fellow's details as well.

if it goes ahead, but we don't have confirmation before c.o.b. tomorrow, do you mind emailing my colleague Ashleigh, who is cc'd and she will endeavour to get a professional photographer along through a relationship we have with said photographer?

Hi Julian

Is skywhale still in Canberra on 30 October? I've had a request to have it at the Australian Computer Society conference at Parliament House that morning. They have offered to pay for the privilege. Any chance of that?

Great to finally chat.

Here is the unedited version of Skywhale information.

All the best

The Skywhale

Thank you for your enquiry regarding Patricia Piccinini's Skywhale performance.

Please find below an outline of operating parameters and associated costs.

Operational Requirements and Restrictions

Although the Skywhale is a commissioned sculpture by the Centenary of Canberra, it is also a registered aircraft. This makes it somewhat unusual when considering its role as a bone-fide sculpture.

The Skywhale is effectively a special shaped hot air balloon designed in 3D by Patricia Piccinini and built by Cameron Balloons in the United Kingdom. The colours, patterns and textures have been carefully printed onto 3,535 metres of fabric. The Skywhale was cut and sewn together by a team of six people using approximately 3.3 million stitches!

It has been designed to fly and is basically an Australian Registered aircraft. This effectively means it is controlled by a pilot and is operated under the Australian Standards pertaining to aviation.

The Skywhale is not a cold inflatable that is erected and then left in situ. It is operated by a commercial pilot and a trained ground assistant and is inflated by burning LPG and heating the inside of the Skywhale to keep it standing.

The Skywhale when inflated stands 24 metres high and is 36 metres in length - basically it is huge.

Attending and Event

When considering the Skywhale at your event there are a few aspects that you may wish to consider.

Free flight - The Skywhale is made to fly. For the purpose of media exposure it is good to look at a free flight over your event with media, VIP or ambassador. When we free fly obviously the Skywhale will drift with the wind - so the flight path would be determined by the wind on the day. If we free fly then we would be unlikely to tether given the time it takes to inflate, fly and to pack away.

Tether - This is when the Skywhale is attached to the ground with ropes. This becomes a static installation giving people the chance to see the sculpture without us blowing away.

Space - Have you got a big enough area to inflate this mythical behemoth? As a rule we would love to have a space clear of obstacles in the vicinity of 50 square metres to inflate the Skywhale. The inflation process starts with the fabric laid out and a petrol fan is used to cold inflate her. Once she is inflated the footprint becomes that of the basket (1.2m x 1.2m). If conditions are calm people are free to wander around and underneath her - even hop in the basket with the pilot.

Obstacles - We do not like sharp obstacles around her as she is made of nylon and can rip quite easily. We particularly do not like powerlines - I guess that goes without saying.

Weather - given the surface area of the Skywhale - it effectively is a giant 'whale of a sail'. Wind plays a big factor in whether we can get the Sculpture up. Winds over 8km on the surface mean that the Skywhale becomes unruly - over 12km it becomes untenable and unsafe. Rain clearly is also something to be avoided.

Outdoor Venues - When considering outdoor venues - we like clean spaces. Grass is great. The best venues are those that offer the best protection from wind.

Indoor Venues - We love indoor venues - if you have a stadium or space big enough for her to fit- our job becomes very easy, as we have no weather considerations to consider. Of course approvals would be required to achieve this perfect tether scenario.

Logistics

The Skywhale packs down to two packages of around 1.4 Metres Square. This includes the 1.2 m x 1.2 m basket with 4 LPG tanks and burners plus the Skywhale 'envelope' which weighs around 350 Kg. This and all the other related equipment loads onto a trailer about 6 metres x 2.5 meters and is generally towed behind a four-wheel drive vehicle.

The equipment can also be land or air freighted and then put in the back of a rented van or truck if trailers are not available.

The Skywhale travels with a team of pilot and crew chief although it does require 3 additional crewmembers to assist with the set up and pack up. Ideally these crewmembers are sourced locally to reduce travel, accommodation and meal costs.

How it works

The whole process of setting up the Skywhale takes approximately 45 minutes from arriving to it being inflated. Generally we operate either early in the morning or later in the evening to capitalise on the light winds. This is not to say the Skywhale cannot operate in the middle of the day - it just is not the most optimal time from a meteorological standpoint.

If the Skywhale is being tethered then ropes will be attached and she will stay in that position for the entire time - which generally will be about 2-3 hours depending on the weather.

If the Skywhale is being free flown the location of launch will vary based on wind direction and where she is expected to fly. Obviously things like terrain and suitable landing area's are most important. A free flight will generally be for one hour.

Packing away the Skywhale takes about one hour - although this may vary based on the amount of helpers available.

Once the Skywhale is back on the trailer it is then taken to a secure location out of the weather to be parked and stored.

General Costs

The general costs associated with a Skywhale performance are as follows

Operating Cost (per 2hr tether/ 1hr free flight)	$3500 plus GST
Travel Days	$400 per 10hr day
Weather days (pilot and 3 crew)	$1250.00 plus GST
Transport Costs (4x4 Vehicle and Trailer)	$1.20 per km
Accommodation	Supplied.
Meals for crew	At Cost
Global Ballooning management fees	$120 per hour plus GST

For events outside of Australia items such as freight will be quoted once established. Effectively the more an event can supply the less we will be required to charge for our management services.

Note*. For overseas events we may utilise the bottom end equipment from local balloon operators to save on freight charges.

The figures form only indicative costs - the actual costs of a performance will be quoted once we have established all the event details.

If volunteers or staff is available to assist we will be able to reduce the cost of operation.

Cancelation Policy

It is advisable to build into your event a weather day to give us the best chance of success. Our team will do everything possible to achieve a positive outcome although given that most of the operating costs are in being on site Global Ballooning Pty Ltd will require 80% of the operating fees to be paid if the Skywhale is unable to operate due to weather or other forces beyond our control.

Have a look at the online information pertaining to the journey from concept to reality. An evocative art project that has already generated international exposure!

Hello Julian

We had a very good meeting at BAC this morning.

I will phone you tomorrow morning so we can discuss a few things. Here are some of the things that we will need assistance with:

- (1) Can you provide us with any documentation about the process of 'hiring' Skywhale.
- (2) I don't have your direct phone number. Could you please provide?
- (3) We will contact { } and firm up details about tethering etc and get back to you with what we agree.
- (4) Could you please advise who we should speak to regarding inclusion on the Centenary Program.

Many thanks for your assistance so far

Hello Julian

Great to hear from you

Everyone is very excited at the prospect, but we do need a date as soon as you are able to advise as we need to talk to our sponsors and organize other things to be happening to make it a real event, worthy of Skywhale's appearance.

I do think the community of Belconnen >92,000 people, would be honoured to have Skywale. So many missed out on the UC appearance, thinking it was the following weekend and I have talked about it a couple of times and we have finances sorted. I took the initiative of approaching you as I have been long involved with the Belconnen community on the arts and culture side.

Hi

Sorry for the delayed response; I have agreement with the operators to keep the work here for the weekend of the 26th of October, but there's now a couple of competing demands and I need to get the opinion of my superiors about which way we go.

The open space on the car-park side of the centre, by the lake, would be fine. So if you're speaking with it would be the and the 6 - 8 volunteers.

I'll get back to you asap.

Dear Julian,
I'm so glad that everything is going well with the Skywhale. I do ring from time to time and I've had a couple of chats with about it and they also tell me it's been a dream run.
I'm totally fine with the glass Skywhale, in fact I'm really happy that Glassworks has thought up this idea and wants to go ahead with it. I'd love a picture of the work when it is finished.

Hi/

Thanks for this. As I mentioned, [redacted] and I have spoken about the tether taking place on Saturday 26 October. Good if Sunday 27th can be kept as a back-up in case the weather is not good on the 26th. And good perhaps for you to consider whether you would go ahead with the other public programming, and how, in the event the weather was not conducive!

[redacted] number is [redacted]

As I mentioned, flights over this period are being charged by Global Ballooning at [redacted] but this is below normal commercial rates and I would ask you please to keep that confidential, lest it create an expectation for the future about what a hot air balloon flight can be done for.

The appearance was called off on the morning of the tether itself; there may still be a small percentage of that amount to be paid for the call time for [redacted] and his crew. But they would do their utmost to get the work up on one of those days.

I know we have one of the original design drawings from [redacted] which, remarkably, turned out to be how the work appears – which is a testament to the manufacturer. I will get that drawing from Helen Berwick, who has it by email, and forward it to you. If that suits your purpose, I'll let [redacted] know. If you think another drawing is required, I'll let her know that too!

As we discussed, let me know after you've confirmed it's logistically all-good with [redacted] and we'll get it up on our scheduled appearances on our website.

Thanks [redacted] it's wonderful to have this enthusiasm for the work from the local arts community, after a lot of thoughtless and baseless criticism; these appearances over this time are really helping to establish Canberra as the home of the work, regardless that from next year she becomes a world traveller.

Cheers

Hello Julian

Thanks for your time on the phone this afternoon.

As discussed, the next step will be for the pilot to visit Canberra Glassworks / Megalo Kinston precinct next week to sight the best tethering location.

Megalo and Canberra Glassworks both plan to run public programming around Skywale to provide good community arts engagement.

Canberra Glassworks would still like to pursue the idea of translating a drawing that translates into glass on the hotshop floor. Although she is currently overseas, if she creating a drawing and emailed it, we could have a team of glass blowers execute her idea in glass.

We would also love to have the opportunity to have work with a team of glass blowers at Canberra Glassworks.
